

Selection: Right Set of Optional Subjects -A Strategic Decision in the Preparation of IAS
Care your Time, Energy (efforts) & Money

Parameters...Consideration of all interconnected variables & choose right sets of optional subjects

1. Interest
2. Education background vs. Reflected optional
3. Statistical Consideration vs. Reflected optional
4. Syllabus
5. Question papers
6. Reading Material
7. Teachers / Mentors

1. Interest

- Understanding yourself, your thinking pattern, Alignment your heart towards the subjects
- Recall your Memory, observe your vocabulary and check, you are more comfortable to express this subject, you can resonance yourself with this optional

Analyse Properly? ~ Are you on the Right Track?

2. Education background vs. Reflected optional subject

- If you are science / Engg. / Commerce / Medical background which motivate to take their own core subject But you have more choice to choose another optional (In arts, Language etc.) Which is easy for scoring?
- If you are Art background ... you can not take any optional of Science, Engg. , Commerce, Medical Choosing the optional for art background is slightly easy (but Considers all related variables).

3. Statistical Consideration vs. Reflected optional subject

- Student choice (as data say): Public administration, Geography, Philosophy, Sociology, Political Science, Psychology, History etc [Background does not matter]
- Choose other optional based on education background.

4. Syllabus

- Deep analysis of your reflected optional (based on above consideration) one by one and check? Are you Ok with this optional? Are you able to make interest? Are you comfortable with this optional?

Analyze the syllabus of Main & PrelimCheck ... will you complete it within time limit ?

5. Question papers

- Analyze latest 3 years question papers and check your thinking & skill sets for exact presentation in the answer (ex : factual & informative or analytical) in a particular optional. Analytical people like question where they have to discuss many thing without giving many factual details. Where as some people like learning facts by pure memory and prefer question which demand straight and factual answers

Understand the pattern of your mind and choose according to own strength & weakness.

6. Reading Material

- Availability of proper & complete reading material & Quality books.

Be Focus.....FocusFocus

7. Teachers / Mentors

- A Mentor for guidance, direction, simplifying the process of preparation, focus continuously & analyzing the performance & feedback and motivate towards goals.

Ensure You have an authentic Mentor
